> You don't often get email from rizal.fitriansyah@id.yusen-logistics.com. Learn why this is important

Dear IATA Taxes Team,

Hello,
My name is Rizal Fitriansyah, and I am part of the Human Resources team at PT Yusen Logistics Indonesia. We are planning to enroll one of our employees in the following training session:

Shipping Lithium Batteries by Air (LIVE virtual classroom)
Virtual Session Asia (IATA)
9 - 10 September 2024
IATA - Shipping Lithium Batteries by Air (LIVE virtual classroom)

We have a few questions regarding the tax status of our company and the procedure for enrolling in the training. Attached, you will find documents related to our IATA tax exemption status. Our specific inquiries are:

a. Does our company qualify for IATA tax exemption based on the attached documents?
b. Is the IATA training center located in Canada for administrative purposes?
c. Are there any additional requirements for Indonesia, as it is listed as a developing country?
d. Does the employee need to create an account on the IATA website, or can I register on behalf of the participant using my account?
e. Could you please provide a detailed step-by-step procedure for enrolling our employee, including how the certification will be sent to us?

Tax exemption

Some legal entities, e.g. public bodies, international organizations, not-for-profit associations, authorized schools, may benefit from tax-exempt status in the country where IATA class training is delivered or in the country where the Distance Learning Kits (self-study) are shipped.

In order to allow IATA to take into account your tax exemption and zero rate for the invoice, it is imperative that you send your exemption proof in scanned version to taxes-lms@iata.org BEFORE you confirm your order online.

An official letter issued by the tax administration or a declaration issued by your own company on an official letterhead are acceptable.

Important: IATA will not be able to credit the tax amount charged, should you fail to provide your exemption proof before ordering.

Additionally, please inform us of any important notes or details we may have overlooked and that we should be aware of.

Thank you,

Best Regards,
Rizal A. Fitriansyah
